

The Significance of Having Someone's Birth Card in Your Spread.

When someone's Birth Card shows up as your Long Range card, it means they will play an important role in your life for that year. They will likely be a major focus for you either, you'll be thinking about them a lot, seeing them a lot or doing things with them a lot.

When someone's Birth Card shows up as your Pluto card. You can bet they will in some way. Be involved in changing you this year. They may not be doing this intentionally, but you will probably feel challenged by their presence in some way. Often, someone who is your Pluto card is a source of difficulty for you. There can be many reasons for this difficulty and your Result card may help to further define how they are part of your transformation this year.

When someone's Birth Card shows up as your Result card this year, they are likely to be someone that you want something from in some way. Often people marry people who are their Result card. The Result card can be someone you end up with by Year's end in one of many ways. A new baby can be the Result card as well. As a Result card, it is highly likely that you will achieve whatever it is in them or about them that you want for yourself. Use this person as a guide to something or some quality that you want to possess and then work hard to get it. In this way you will get the most out of the relationship

When someone's Birth Card is your Support card, you can bet that they will be a helpful influence in your life for the year. Their influence is always a positive one and one that you will perceive as a blessing in your life. Simply being consciously grateful for what is received, you can magnify the blessing that comes from a Support card person. This is a little trick that few people know about, but it can produce powerful Results

When someone's Birth Card is your Development card, it means that you will have to help them much in the same way as people who are your Support card will help you in any given year. You may perceive a Development card person as a drain on you, but usually you will just recognize that you have to give to them and be done with it. Look at your Development card people as those to whom you must pay some dues this year.

When someone's Birth Card is your Mercury card, you are given the gift of communication with them this year. The Mercury connection is basically a good one. You two have a good mental connection. This may be someone with whom you are involved with in a mental pursuit such as school or classes of some kind. You probably have much in common and much to talk about. This ability to communicate is very good for intimate relationships such as marriage or love affairs because communication is an important ingredient to long-term success. A word of caution, a new person that you meet during a Mercury. Should not be counted on in any long-term committed way. New Mercury relationships are often short-lived affairs pleasant and sweet, but over just as quickly as they start.

When someone's Birth Card is your Venus card. You love and or have a lot of affection for them. This can range from a dear friend or a relative to someone you would spend the rest of your life with the people you find here will be friendly and helpful to you this year and possibly a social financial help as well. Often a Venus person is someone in your home. A marriage during this period is considered blessed by favorable influences and any love affairs started during this period will also be very fulfilling. Keep in mind that though you love this person you find in this position, there's no guarantee that the feeling is mutual. The bottom line is that you will probably get along very well with anyone who's Birth Card is in your Venus period.

When someone's Birth Card is your Mars card. The relationship can manifest in several ways, most of them dramatic and stimulating. Since Mars rules the aggressive and sexual side of our nature, we find one or both of these elements operating in the Mars ruled relationships. The person you find in this position will either be a source of passion for you or a source of competitive or aggressive energies. It is either making love or making war. There seems to be no in between for Mars relationships unless they are your lawyer or physical trainer for women. A man in the Mars. Could be a lover or husband. It is considered a good sign for women to find someone you are attracted to in their Mars

When someone's Birth Card is your Jupiter card, you in any given year might receive a great deal of support both financially and spiritually from this person. This is considered to be one of the better positions to have someone's card in. Jupiter people are expansive and have for the most part, what is termed abundance consciousness at least in their attitude towards you. Their positive attitude will be an expansive influence affecting your decisions, which will in turn, may help you expand your financial or business dealings. They may even give you money or help your business in some other direct manner. Doing business with a Jupiter person will invariably prove to be profitable unless the other cards are the same. Say otherwise. To take advantage of their influence, prepare yourself to go beyond the normal boundaries you have set for yourself, especially those relating to your business. A love, relationship or marriage during the Jupiter period is considered blessed in many ways

When someone's Birth Card is your Saturn card, it tells you that this person will be a challenging relationship for you in one or more ways. Saturn is a great teacher and he usually teaches by showing us parts of ourselves that need improving. He usually brings a certain amount of pain or hard work to the picture as well. So the person that is Saturn to you will place a burden or limitation upon you in some way. They may not do it intentionally, but in some way you will feel restricted or burdened by their association. Often there is an element of hardship or physical illness between the two of you. One of you may be ill and one of you may be the healer. The major gift of the Saturn relationship is learning. Anyone who is Saturn to us can make an excellent teacher. Saturn is also associated with commerce, so here we find destined relationships that arise to pay off debts that were created sometime in the past, perhaps in a past life.

When someone's Birth Card is your Uranus card, first, you will find that you are friends. There has to be a lot of freedom in Uranus relationships. Neither of you can place heavy expectations on the other. This is why Uranus relationships are also considered a person who leaves you feeling uncertain in some way. There can be an element of the unexpected change about them.

People you find here may be those that leave you feeling a bit uneasy and unsettled. You just don't know what they might do next. They can be very independent and rebellious, demanding freedom at all costs and they may have come into your life and upset your stability in some way. The nature of a Uranus relationship is such that you will be unable to control, change or hold on to any of these people.

When someone's Birth Card is your Neptune card, it may be that you meet this person on a vacation or journey of some sort. Here we find those people that you see through rose-colored glasses. You choose to see them in a way that you want to see them instead of for who they are. Though a Neptune relationship can sometimes be a dream come true. In most cases it is full of illusion and deception. The Neptune relationship can be one that involves alcohol, drug addiction or codependency. It is commonly an addictive relationship of one kind or another. Either you are trying to save the other or you want to be saved by them.
